“A Personal Journey”

with Karrin Broadhurst

Creating sustainable urban landscapes that nurture nature

With a degree in environmental technology and work experience in the auto, petrochemical, pulp and paper and health care sectors and with Federal and Provincial environmental agencies, Karrin is now focused on environmental activism in our community.

Karrin’s presentation is on her personal journey to learn and understand what it means to be an environmental Steward. Growing up in the totally devastated environment of Sudbury Ontario in the 1950’s to 70’s, she enrolled in the first environmental technology program in Ontario graduating with the Dean’s Award and then went on to further her Environmental Studies at Western University. During her career she worked in numerous capacities for organizations such as Environment Canada and Climate Change, The Ontario Ministry of Environment, The Great Lakes Pollution Prevention Centre, and for companies in the automotive, petrochemical, pulp and paper, and health care sectors.

Now retired, her focus is on creating sustainable urban landscapes that nurture nature starting with her own garden and helping others do the same.
